

The below communication was sent by Livent Corporation's ("Livent") Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Paul Graves, to the employees of Livent on June 21, 2023.

From: Paul Graves
To: All Livent Employees

Dear Livent Team,

It has been one month since we announced our merger agreement with Allkem, and I wanted to provide you with an update on our progress and what you can expect in the coming months.

Over the last month, we have started an extensive program of engagement across customers, government officials and shareholders regarding the proposed transaction. From my initial conversations, our top customers are very supportive of the proposed merger. Our strategic rationale for combining our companies is clear.

We are also actively engaging with government officials. As you know, the EV transition is a policy priority for many governments around the world. On the regulatory front, we have already made many of the required initial filings and will continue to work closely with antitrust regulators and other government authorities to quickly respond to their inquiries as part of our goal to close in the fourth quarter of 2023.

As we have stated before, the transaction will also require the approval of both sets of shareholders of Livent and Allkem. We are engaging with our shareholders and preparing for the Livent shareholder vote that we are targeting to hold later in the year to approve the proposed merger. Given Allkem also requires approval from its shareholders, albeit through a slightly different process, Gilberto Antoniazzi, Dan Rosen and I are meeting with investors and analysts in Australia this week, to help them better understand the Livent business model and our industry leading capabilities, as well as the value-creating logic of the proposed combination.

While we will continue to operate as two separate companies until the transaction closes, our teams are planning for the integration process to ensure a smooth transition into our next chapter as a combined company. We will establish a single Integration Management Office (IMO) with representatives from both companies conducting pre-integration planning prior to the deal closing. We are also working to finalize the management structure by aiming to appoint the future leadership team before the end of June.

Finally, we are working together to identify a new name and a new location for the corporate headquarters for the combined company, and will communicate them prior to the closing of the transaction. However, for those of you based in Philadelphia please be assured that we will not be closing the Philadelphia office and all employees who work there today will retain the option to continue to work in that location in the future.

The transaction remains on track to close by the end of 2023. We want to make sure everyone is informed throughout the process, so we will regularly communicate transaction updates and key milestones.

As always, if you receive any external enquiries about the merger, please direct them to our Communications Team or contact Juan Carlos Cruz directly.

I ask that you stay focused on being safe and delivering the results we need for the year. Thank you for your continued dedication and hard work.

Sincerely,

Paul Graves
Livent President & CEO
